Guardia Piemontese is a charming town in the Alto Tyrrhenian Cosentino, reachable via the S.S 18 or by state railways.

Its origins date back to around the 1200's by the Waldensian community, which came down from Val Pellice for religious or economic reasons, they settled around the watchtower already built between the 11th and 12th centuries to defend the populations from pirate and Saracen raids.

The Historic Center, perched at about 514 meters above sea level and in a favorable position for the climate and panoramic views. In the valley of the Bagni river, between the municipalities of Acquappesa and Guardia P.se, are the Luigiane Baths, named after Louis Charles of Bourbon, already known at the time of Pliny the Elder for their exceptional therapeutic properties.
